FEEDS IN 24 HOURS IS COMMON

Responsive, not rigid. The daytime bars visualize a 3-hour cycle; breastfed babies may feed closer to every 2½ hours.

Parent care belongs in the schedule. When baby sleeps, prioritize rest, food, water, and accepting help.

Visual companion based on publicly available week-by-week schedule details from Helen Moon's book. Follow your pediatrician's feeding plan, especially for premature babies, jaundice, weight concerns, or other medical needs.
